EDITORIAL CHANGES — ADDITIONS
 Subscribers are encouraged to amend directory listings and to post changes in monthly "Command and Staff" column ARMY AVIATION by submitting their name, rank, title, unit (for firm), unit address, and phone number to ARMY AVIATION, Box 28, Westport, Connecticut 06880.

LIMITED DISTRIBUTION
 A copy of the annual "Command and Staff Directory" is provided to each subscriber of ARMY AVIATION as part of a general subscription. The magazine will not make any provision for the distribution or sale of overprint copies of the Directory.

The Third Directory

As you leaf through this third edition of the Command and Staff Directory of "Army Aviation Magazine" you will notice there are many more listings than were in the last issue. This results in part from an increase in the number of aviation units over last year and from the greater detail provided.

Additionally, the number and variety of command and staff positions held by Army Aviators has increased. In the Pentagon, for example, there has been a 50 percent increase in the number of assigned Army Aviators.

This, in the main, is not because the number of prefix 6 or aviator-designated positions has changed appreciably but because there are more aviators available to assign to a wide range of positions, many of them Category B. While Category B positions do not require aviation skills of the incumbent, with the Army's great and growing interest in aviation there are few places where aviation knowledge will not be useful or used if available. The tremendous career development advantages are apparent.

One of the most significant changes you will note is in the position which it has been my privilege to hold since mid-April. Effective 1 July, Major General John L. Klingenhagen will become the Director of Army Aviation. General Klingenhagen brings to this position a wealth of experience in Army Aviation. You will hear from him through the medium of the Newsletter in the next issue.

I know you will find this edition informative and useful. Since the accuracy of the Directory is a direct result of the corrections and suggestions you as readers have provided, please continue to advise the editor of changes that occur throughout the year.

New world's record set by a Bell Helicopter.

An unofficial world's speed record of 316 mph in level flight has been set by the two-bladed Army-Bell High Performance Compound Helicopter. This is the first helicopter to exceed 300 mph in level flight, and is the fastest known rotorcraft flight anywhere.

The helicopter uses a standard Bell UH-1H semirigid rotor hub with low-twist blades.

During the high-speed run, the rotor reached an advance ratio of .726; nearly three-fourths of the retreating blade was flying backward. Rotor tip speeds in excess of Mach 1 have also been recorded, with vibration within Government comfort-limit specifications.

Simulated power failures up to 260 knots demonstrated successful high speed autorotation entry.

This remarkable helicopter is one of Bell's flying laboratories. It is called Model 533 High Performance Compound Helicopter, and somewhere down the line, when Bell offers for service use an astonishingly fast high performance helicopter, you may want to remember you read in advance that it was on its way.

Tomorrow's breakthroughs started yesterday with Bell's R&D.

Sure it's ugly.

But this new searchlight for helicopters packs a 20,000-watt wallop.

Beautiful!

Beams 900 feet in diameter and 50 times brighter than full moonlight from an altitude of 3,000 feet—that's the level of performance you can expect from our ugly-but-brilliant Nightsun™ FX-150. It's the most powerful xenon searchlight made for helicopter surveillance and patrol.

FX-150 weighs a compact 160 pounds with remotely controlled two-axis gimbal mount as standard equipment for cockpit control of azimuth and elevation.

Or choose the lightweight Nightsun SX-16—1600 watts in a 25-pound package for light helicopter use.

Both produce illumination so close to natural daylight that color temperature is high enough for night color photography. And both searchlights are available with infrared filter for covert surveillance missions.

Nightsuns are flying now all over the world with Bell, Enstrom, Fairchild Hiller, and other helicopters and fixed wing aircraft.

Available for immediate delivery in the U.S. and overseas.

For detailed information, write or call Spectrolab/12484 Gladstone Avenue, Sylmar, Calif. 91342/ (213) Empire 5-4611.

Air Support by APM

DELTADYNE® DIFFERENTIAL PRESSURE INDICATORS, SWITCHES

These devices, available on all APM filters, take the guesswork out of when to change filter elements. The result is much longer element life, reduced maintenance costs, fewer spares needed. Standard designs or individually engineered units available.

GROUND SUPPORT EQUIPMENT

Increasingly sophisticated aircraft systems make new demands for high performance AGE. To achieve this, Air Force and Navy ground service hydraulic carts are now equipped with our 3 micron absolute Ultipor® .9 filters designed in conformance with MIL-F-27656A (USAF). In addition, exciting new maintenance concepts in terms of both effectiveness and downtime reduction have been opened up by APM-developed fluid purification systems. These systems can swiftly remove free and dissolved air and moisture from lube and hydraulic systems.

FUEL, LUBE FILTERS

Protect expensive system components like pumps, controls, bearings, gears and many others from destructive contamination. Highest dirt capacity, long service intervals. Elements use latest cleanable or disposable filter media. New designs available for today's high-temperature fuel systems.

FLYING ULTIPOR® HYDRAULIC FILTERS
A giant step toward fewer maintenance problems, lower maintenance costs, 3 micron absolute Ultipor filters remove fine particles (1-5 micron size) that act as a "lapping" compound, grinding on — and wedging between — critical valve and pump surfaces. Standard filters, too coarse to stop small-sized contaminants, can never approach the savings in reduced downtime of aircraft using our Flying Ultipor filters.

TRANSMISSION FILTERS
Keep abrasive wear to a minimum by effectively removing harmful particulate matter from transmission oil. All new "sequence filter" principle makes continuous filtration possible, even during cold starts.

CENTRISEP™ AIR CLEANERS
Compact, inertial-type cleaners remove sand, dust and other rotor-whipped abrasives from air, prevent erosion of vital parts, protect instrument visibility in cabin. Self-cleaning and long lasting.

For hydraulics, for fuel, for lube, for transmissions, for air . . . complete fluid purification systems from the world's largest producer of sophisticated airborne filtration products give you real air support when you need it. Whenever APM products are applied, they help keep you airborne.

It's a cargo carrier!
It's a troop transport!
It's a staff transport!
It's a flying ambulance!

It's the Beechcraft U-21A...now in Huge double doors and hefty one-and-three-quarter ton useful load enhance its capability as a high-priority cargo carrier. In-the-field conversion to any of its other utility configurations is quick and easy.

This remarkable versatility combines with proven dependability and exceptional performance to make the U-21A the ideal multi-mission airplane. Now in daily use, the traditionally rugged Beechcraft construction is meeting the diversified demands of urgent front-line operations.

Twin turboprop power provides quiet, efficient, trouble-free operation at both high and low flight levels. Amazing short and rugged field capability. Full all-weather dependability.

Big plane range, payload and positive "feel". Yet the U-21A will save its cost over and over again when operated instead of larger aircraft.

The worldwide Beechcraft service organization provides easily accessible parts and expert service, eliminating the need for an expensive logistic support program.

continuous production!

The U-21A is just one member of the Beechcraft family of utility aircraft. Each is built with growth potential in mind, to be quickly adaptable to meet the demands of the future. Write now for full information, performance data, mission profiles and growth factors. Address Beech Aerospace Division, Beech Aircraft Corporation, Wichita, Kansas 67201, U.S.A.

Great
deserve

They deserve avionics they can depend on—Bendix avionics. We're one of the few who can promise and deliver the most advanced electronic hardware that continues to refine U.S. military avionics systems.

Over the years we have implemented new state-of-the-art design techniques such as solid state tuning, pilot operated self-test circuitry, automatic self-calibration, integrity monitoring and integral fault analysis. Add to that sound design practices, careful selection of highest quality components, skilled craftsmen, and you get Bendix reliability.

Bendix can provide off-the-shelf delivery—plus plenty of service support. Write: The Bendix Corporation, Avionics Division, Fort Lauderdale, Fla. 33310.

Army Aviation, the Army, and the Nation lost an outstanding leader with the death of . . .

Bill Bunker: “A Veritable Giant”

IN his eulogy, General Frank S. Beson, Jr. referred to Bill Bunker as “a veritable giant in intellect and endeavor.”

To those of us who knew him, he was that and more . . . a giant among men.

How will we remember him? . . . Just as many, many others do . . . for his encouragement when it was needed . . . for his gentle manner of reproach and wry smile . . . for his continual assistance and availability, despite the heavy responsibilities of his office at the time.

Our image of Bill Bunker, then, is one of a kind man.

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY, HEAD-QUARTERS U.S. ARMY MATERIEL COMMAND,

Washington, D.C., June 5, 1969.

For over six and one-half years, Lieutenant General William B. Bunker was a principal in shaping the Army Materiel Command and in executing its many missions. His death, just fifty-five days before his scheduled retirement, comes as a grievous shock to all his colleagues and friends.

General Bunker was a brilliant officer. An intellectual, engineer, administrator, and manager, he was admired and respected not only by his brother officers but by his wide circle of associates in the scientific, industrial, and educational communities. His contributions were legion; his dedication total; his love of the Army and his country manifested by his deeds and actions.

I know that every member of the Army Materiel Command is saddened by General Bunker's death. Our prayers go to him and Mrs. Bunker. We can honor him best by carrying on with the same dedication and drive that he displayed so brilliantly throughout the entire life of this command.

F. J. CHESAREK,
General, U.S. Army, Commanding.

EULOGY FOR LT. GEN. WILLIAM BEEHLER
BUNKER

As the friends and associates of Bill Bunker gathered here today well know, it is extremely difficult to reduce to words an appreciation of his life and works. He was a veritable giant in intellect and endeavor, but he was not a status seeker. We who knew him, learned his true measure gradually. We learned to respect his strength of character and incisive approach to fundamentals of problems; we learned to count on his directness and his integrity; learned to listen to his counsel, to expect his kindly humanity, to treasure his quiet humor, and to love and respect him for all that he was.

Without doubt, the keystone of his life was soldierly duty to his country. Duty always came first—and perhaps we should not have been so shocked at his death on the eve of retirement. His whole outlook was conditioned by his family environment—for his father, his brother and the husband of his only sister, all were killed in the active Army service of the country—two of the three, including his father, as Japanese prisoners of war.

Duty for Bill Bunker was not just total dedication. Throughout his life he was continually studying to expand his capacity to serve. It was not idle chance that he was able to discuss, on even terms with experts, stability problems in helicopters, software design for sophisticated computers, probability formulae for systems analyses, chapter and verse of the armed forces procurement regulations, or improving the dialogue with an impatient younger generation.

The range and depth of his understanding of fundamentals did not always win him friends, because he really could not disguise his lack of tolerance for argument based on intuition or pink cloud fancy.

Imaginative leadership

Caught between breadth of vision and depth of understanding on the one hand and a sort of "take it or leave it" brusqueness on the other hand, his roads to achievement and success were not always smooth. The jolts and vicissitudes bothered him, of course, but he early adopted a philosophy that they were part and parcel of the price of imaginative leadership—to be endured and shrugged off with his wry smile. He may have engendered a few misunderstandings among his superiors, but he enjoyed a host of fierce and enduring loyalties among his subordinates, military and civilian.

Today is not the day to dwell in detail on his military career, but it was unique in its variety. A cavalryman turned engineer. He evidenced his early and continuing interest in civic affairs and social issues by teaching in off duty hours, mathematics, in Spanish to Nicaraguans when he was surveying an alternate route for the Panama Canal. He bought marine and rail equipment for the Transportation Corps in World War II. He ran the ground terminals for the Berlin Airlift and the Korean War, and, of course, he foresaw the capability of helicopters and blue-printed their wide scale introduction into the Army. As commander of the Aviation Materiel Command in St. Louis, he pioneered the large scale effective use of modern computers in the business management of military materiel. The advanced data system that he perfected is the primary reason that Army Aviation is so well supported in Vietnam today.

For the past 6½ years, as noted by General Chesarek in announcing General Bunker's death, he was a principal in shaping the Army Materiel Command. To quote, in part, from that moving announcement:

"His dedication total . . ."

"General Bunker was a brilliant officer. An intellectual, engineer, administrator, and manager, he was admired and respected not only by his brother officers but by his wide circle of associates in the scientific, industrial, and educational communities. His contributions were legion; his dedication total; his love of the army and his country manifested by his deeds and actions."

General Bunker is no longer with us. He leaves behind his beloved Crissie whose dedication to her husband was as complete as his dedication to his duty. To Crissie, to their son Paul, and to his other relatives, we extend our deepest sympathy.

For the rest of us, his friends and associates, and indeed, his Army and his Country, we will sorely miss the inspired leadership of a great and good man. We can, however, be thankful that we were privileged to be around when Bill Bunker ran his splendid course, here on our troubled earth.

(This eulogy was delivered at gravesite at Arlington National Cemetery, Arlington, Va., on June 9, 1969, by Gen. Frank S. Benson, Jr.)

RECOMMENDATION FOR AWARD OF DSM TO LT. GEN. WILLIAM B. BUNKER

Lieutenant General William B. Bunker performed meritorious and distinguished service for this nation as the comptroller and director of programs from June 1962 to April 1964 and deputy commanding general, U.S. Army Materiel Command during the period April 1964 to November 1968.

The entire period of these assignments, in positions of the utmost importance to the capability of the Army to achieve its assigned mission, and to the welfare of the nation, was marked by a constant series of significant personal contributions by General Bunker.

General Bunker made significant contributions to the success of the Army Materiel Command since the inception of the concept of such a command. As a member of the original planning group set up to organize the Army Materiel Command, he was instrumental in establishing procedures which smoothed the transition between the establishment of the command and the technical service organizations it replaced.

$12 billion authority

As the first comptroller and director of programs, U.S. Army Materiel Command, from June 1962 to April 1964, General Bunker had corporate responsibility for an annual obligation authority which exceeded twelve billion dollars. This involved the functions of ninety-two major installations and activities employing over one hundred and sixty-nine thousand military and civilian personnel. In addition to being responsible for the integrated performance of programming, budgeting, accounting, and review and analysis, he had direct control over the establishment and execution of the operation and maintenance, Army (O&MA) appropriation, military assistance program (Logistical Support), Family Housing Management Account (FHMA), and the Army Industrial Fund. He was also responsible for the development, presentation and defense of programs and budgets for these appropriations. Throughout the entire period of his assignment with the command, General Bunker constantly searched for new and improved management techniques. During this period of Government-wide emphasis on cost reduction, General Bunker was a key figure in the development and realization of AMC exceeded goals, which were a major part of the Army effort in the cost reduction program.

Later, General Bunker was made the deputy commanding general of the Army Materiel Command. This job in an organization charged with the responsibility for research, development, production, procurement, testing, evaluation, maintenance, storage, and issue of Army equipment and materiel was an awesome undertaking which challenged the highly superior qualities and extremely rare professional skills of a general in a high logistics position. General Bunker's outstanding abilities, energetic determination and unparalleled management talents combined to provide the necessary leadership to the organization supplying the much needed materiel and equipment to the men and women of the U.S. Army worldwide in a timely manner. His distinguished contributions toward organizing and developing the industrial might of the U.S. from a peacetime economy to the most efficient and effective arsenal for a democracy during a period of limited war was phenomenal.

The Vietnam buildup

In January 1965, there were approximately 20,000 troops in Vietnam. Annually, there has been an increase almost of 200,000, so that by early 1968 there were 550,000 combat forces in Southeast Asia. This buildup had a tremendous impact on the Army logistic system. The U.S. Army Materiel Command, with General Bunker as deputy commander, was required to provide the major portion of the logistics support required by troops in Southeast Asia, representing all the services.

Support of our troops in the United States, as well as in the rest of the world, had to be continued and improved simultaneously. The buildup of our forces presented a great challenge to the capability of AMC in providing materiel support for these various operations. New weapons systems and new uses for existing weapons had to be formulated. Projects had to be expanded and all procurements had to be accelerated. U.S. industrial might had to be re-oriented, motivated and enlarged in an economy dedicated to both guns and butter for the first time in U.S. history during a period of active warfare abroad. Eight Army ammunition plants were reopened in rapid succession in support of our Southeast Asia requirements and to replace mobilization inventory stocks. Production for small arms ammunition worldwide was accelerated 600 percent. Extreme difficulties were overcome in the acquisition of many parts and supplies to support these operations.

As a personnel manager, General Bunker assisted in guiding the efforts of 12,000 military and 160,000 civilian employees toward resolving the tremendous logistical problems presented by our military force buildup in RVN along with the 40% increase in Army strength worldwide. In addition to directing personnel in providing logistical support, General Bunker addressed the funding problem. Through his personal efforts in presenting the AMC case to the Department of the Army and the Department of Defense, he was instrumental in securing authorization for funding the AMC programs in January 1968, instead of June and July as had been the practice. All of the FY 68 funds were allocated and committed by December toward known and established requirements.

Primary emphasis through AMC's huge network of more than 190 arsenals, depots, laboratories, proving grounds, procurement offices, and other facilities has been placed upon providing the finest possible weapons, equipment, and other supplies at the lowest fair price to the Government and to our troops wherever located. Despite the ever-increasing overseas demands for supplies and the increased workload, General Bunker's outstanding ability to inspire and motivate his team to accomplish more and better work was decisive in assuring the timely completion and delivery of many new weapons systems to RVN.

General Bunker constantly searched for new managerial techniques which could be employed to shorten lead time or reduce costs. As a result, he became deeply involved in the early concepts of project management and was responsible for the initial AMC regulation governing the basic techniques for operation and control of project managers. Project management within AMC has been the primary mechanism for planning, direction and control of roughly one-half of all RDT&E and PEMA programs assigned to the command. In total, the USAMC project management effort accounts for management of new annual obligational authority of approximately $4 billion which has been programmed against requirements to develop, procure, test, field and support the most complex, costly and combat critical materiel in the Army inventory. Successful accomplishment of the AMC project managed effort is an absolute concomitant to continued support of Southeast Asia operations, to the future well being of the Army, to the security of the Nation.

Aviation exploited

A recognized authority on the military use of helicopters since the early 1950's, he has played a leading role in the development of Army Aviation. Procurement and logistical support of Army aircraft has been expanded under General Bunker's direction as follows:

A. Expanding the aircraft inventory from about 5,700 aircraft in 1962 to over 11,000 aircraft in 1968. More than one-half of the aircraft inventory is presently operating and being supported under combat conditions.

B. The newest version of the Chinook helicopter (CH-47) was accepted in March 1968.

C. A production contract for the OH-58A light observation helicopter was awarded in March 1968.

D. AMC formally accepted the AH-1G HueyCobra, high speed helicopter gunship.

E. Twenty-one CH-54A "Flying Crane"

General Bunker passed away on June 5 in Rader Clinic at Fort Myer, Virginia, following a heart attack at his Fort Myer quarters. He is survived by his wife, Crystle, of the home, a son, Paul D. Bunker, III, who is an employee of the U.S. Army Aviation Systems Command in St. Louis, Mo., and three grandchildren.

Services were held on June 9 at the Fort Myer Chapel. Burial with full military honors followed at Arlington National Cemetery.

helicopters have been airlifted to Vietnam.

General Bunker was also intimately involved in Project Flat Top. AMC was assigned responsibility for the Army's first floating aircraft maintenance facility. Determination was first established for the overall feasibility of a floating maintenance facility. Various ships' hulls had to be studied for the one most suitable to house such a facility. During this period, seventeen ships were surveyed, including the CVE, CVS (AUT), T-1, T-2, C-2 and C-3 hulls, AR and AV classes. Concurrently, conceptual plans were developed concerning the deployment, utilization, re-supply, and manning of the ship, all of which were unprecedented in Army history.

The AV class was selected as being the most economically feasible for conversion; the concept for the project was approved by the JCS; and the Secretary of Defense approved the concept and provided $9 million for ship conversion and $2.5 million for capital equipment aboard the vessel.

William B. Bunker Memorial Scholarship

At the request of Mrs. Bunker, a "William B. Bunker Memorial Scholarship Fund" has been established, the first scholarship award to be presented to a qualified student having a Fall, 1969 college entry.

Contributions in the name of the Memorial Fund are welcomed. Donation checks should be made payable to and forwarded to the AAAA Scholarship Foundation, Inc., 1 Crestwood Road, Westport, Conn. 06880.

Detailed coordination had to be effected with the Department of the Navy, which was performing the conversion, and the numerous AMC commodity commands, which were procuring the capital equipment for the facility. A Department of Defense priority was obtained on this project along with assistance from AMC depots in borrowing skilled manpower, which resulted in the conversion of the facility being completed 6 months ahead of schedule. In February 1966, the floating aircraft maintenance facility departed CONUS for Southeast Asia and as-

Son of a Regular Army officer, General Bunker was born September 30, 1910 at Fort Slocum, New York and was commissioned in the Cavalry upon graduation from the U.S. Military Academy in 1934. Two years later he transferred to the Engineer Corps and attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he was awarded a degree of Master of Science in Engineering.

His military awards included, besides the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal, American Defense Service Medal, American Campaign Medal, World War II Victory Medal, Army Occupation Medal (Germany), National Defense Service Medal, Berlin Airlift Device, Korean Service Medal, and United Nations Service Medal.

General Bunker was an Honorable Fellow and Past President of the American Helicopter Society, Associate Fellow of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Society of Civil Engineers, President of the Armed Forces Management Association, and a member of the American Management Ass'n and AUSA.

A charter member of the Army Aviation Association, he generated the membership interest that resulted in the founding of AAAA's Lindbergh (St. Louis) Chapter, today AAAA's No. 2 activity.

ignment to the U.S. Army Vietnam. This provision for on-the-scene, in theater, depot-level aircraft maintenance support has contributed greatly to a reduction in the theater EDP rate for aircraft, and hence the firepower mobility of the U.S. forces there.

As one of the leading management proponents in the Nation, General Bunker has kept his command in the forefront of American business management. He has worked endlessly and tirelessly to keep the command abreast of scientific and technical developments, and to insure that their potential impact has been understood by members of the command. As president of the Armed Forces Management Association, an organization composed of leading defense contractors and selected military personnel, General Bunker has continued to advance the cause of enlightened management practices throughout the defense establishment and the nation's industrial base. His efforts have earned high praise from military, industrial, and academic circles alike.

General Bunker contributed materially to the national ADP program for AMC logistics management (NAPALM), one of the largest systems efforts in the Army and Department of Defense. During the period beginning 1 July 1966, the program had entered one of its most critical phases, involving the selection of the initial sets of equipment and the establishment of the central system design agency to complete and install the new standard system under his guidance. These important milestones were achieved and the program is proceeding on schedule.

General Bunker unquestionably has rendered services of inestimable value to the entire U.S. Army and to the Government of the United States in his outstanding professional direction of a base logistic support complex. The modernization and vitalization he has brought to the Army's logistic system have had the most far-reaching effects and the many benefits resulting from his abilities and unstinting efforts will continue to accrue to the Army for many years to come. As a consequence, the award of the Distinguished Service Medal to General Bunker will be a rightly deserved recognition of his many contributions.

ARMY AVIATION ASSOCIATION

GENERAL PURPOSES

To advance the status, overall esprit, and the general knowledge and proficiency of those persons who are engaged professionally in the field of U.S. Army aviation in the active U.S. Army forces and in the Reserve Forces of the U.S. Army.

To preserve and foster a spirit of good fellowship among military and civilian persons whose past or current duties affiliate them with the field of U.S. Army aviation.

To advance those policies, programs, and concepts of the Association of the U.S. Army, the National Guard Association, and the Reserve Officers Association that are of benefit to the AAAA membership.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Fostering a public understanding of Army aviation and arousing a public interest in this segment of the military forces.

Exchanging ideas and disseminating information pertinent to Army aviation through the media endorsed by the Association.

Inspiring Army-wide and nationwide interest in Army aviation careers.

Cementing relationships between those interested in Army aviation in the active U.S. Army forces and the Reserve Forces of the U.S. Army.

Motivating Army aviation personnel to increase their knowledge, techniques, and skills.

Maintaining historical records of Army aviation.

Conducting meetings, seminars, symposiums, exhibitions, air meets, etc.

Recognizing outstanding contributions within Army aviation.

Providing special types of group plans of individual benefit to the membership.

Stimulating good fellowship nationally, regionally, and locally.

A FILM EXCHANGE PROGRAM in which the member is afforded the opportunity of viewing current developments in the state of the art as portrayed through the medium of industry films.

A LOCATOR SERVICE PROGRAM in which the member is assisted in his efforts to keep abreast of the location of his contemporaries.

A SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS PROGRAM in which the sons and daughters of members receive scholarship assistance annually is pursued in conjunction with the AAAA Scholarship Foundation, Inc., a separate, non-profit educational foundation that works closely with the Army Aviation Association.

A SCIENCE AWARDS PROGRAM conceived by the Washington, D.C. Chapter in which the Association endeavors to interest young people in the aviation sciences by sponsoring cash scholarship awards at the Annual Science Fair-International and numerous individual Certificates of Achievement at some 220 local and regional Science Fairs. AAAA individual members serve as judges at local, regional, and national fairs.

PARTIAL PROGRAM LIST

An AWARDS PROGRAM in which outstanding individual and unit achievements receive National recognition.

A CHAPTER ACTIVITIES PROGRAM in which outstanding industry and military leaders address the widespread Chapter organizations on specific areas of Army aviation interest.

ARMY AVIATION ASSOCIATION APPLICATION FOR MEMBERSHIP

I wish to become a member of the Army Aviation Association of America (AAAA). I have enclosed my Membership Dues and the first-year Initiation Fee. Please start my ARMY AVIATION MAGAZINE subscription and send my membership credentials.

- My past or current duties affiliate me with the field of U.S. Army aviation or its allied pursuits.
- My past and current duties have not affiliated me with the field of U.S. Army aviation but I wish to further the aims and purposes of the AAAA.

Master Specialties Company, leading supplier of the familiar Master Caution panels on Huey helicopters, invites you to Meet AVA*, The Guardian Voice

AVA is an entirely new audio annunciator system designed specifically for Army Aviation requirements. It provides instant voice warning of critical flight conditions and aircraft malfunctions in terms that can't be overlooked or misunderstood. Instead of competing for visual attention, AVA frees the pilot and crew to concentrate on mission requirements and flight safety.

AVA is available with 20 or more channels of audio-only or audio-visual indication. Either way, the package is small and light enough for Army helicopter applications. This has been demonstrated in U.S. Army Military Potential tests at Ft. Rucker, Alabama, in 1968, when AVA successfully completed testing under simulated tactical conditions.

Installation and maintenance are simple. In most cases, AVA takes no more space than existing visual-only Master Caution panels. Each message is pre-recorded on an individual tape cartridge which can be replaced in the field, without tools and from the front of the panel.

For details on AVA, write for Catalog 2029.

Hardnosed Huey

If ever there was a born scrapper, it's the Huey Copter — and not just in its familiar Cobber version.

The everpresent UH-1's can do much more than tote troops and supplies: right along with its useful cargo it can shoot to pave the way for landing forces, doubling in brass as a gunship or rocket launcher. The Avco Lycoming T-53 gas turbine that powers each Huey gives it all the performance, payload, and the survivability it needs for this kind of hardnosed duty.

More than 13,000,000 flight hours — most of them in combat — have been chalked up by the Huey's T-53 gas turbine — and every new mission is a case history attesting that this copter and its engine can take it as well as dish it out.

The only thing tougher than this scrappy chopper and its rugged engine: the men that stake their lives on them both.
