The Mighty Buffalo is on the job!

Just ask the armed forces of 18 countries

The Mighty Buffalo has proven itself as a force multiplier in some of the most difficult terrains in the world. The Buffalo . . .

- has the range — 3,000 miles self deployment without refueling
- is reliable — 15.4 hours proven MTBF
- requires little maintenance — 2.8 MMH/FH
- is ready when needed — 94% inherent availability
- is economical — 18,000 lbs. payload delivered at less than $1.95 per ton-mile

Using its rugged STOL capability, the Mighty Buffalo is the tactical transport that goes where the troops go, lives where the troops live, and sustains the front-line forces.

"Something for everyone"

TO: AAAA Members Worldwide

We've reproduced many of the photographs in this issue that were taken at the recent AAAA National Convention in an effort to pass along some of "the flavor" of the gathering . . . It's not an easy thing to do!

The adjacent but separate Omni Hotel and Georgia World Congress Center offered Quad-A a modern, attractive, and convenient convention complex. The latter was cavernous with more square feet available than was necessary to accommodate the record-breaking 1,564 registrants. While it was a good hike from the auditorium end to the exhibit hall end and back again (a quarter-mile for a cup of coffee at breaks), no one complained. A bright note: the 1983 presence of so many women. Some 397 attended Atlanta '83 as spouses and an additional 60 women were individual industry registrants. That's 457 women in all — another new Quad-A "high".

Most memorable: The Hall of Fame Induction Luncheon, ten simply outstanding inductees, an equally outstanding M.C., and a wife's moving tribute to her deceased husband.

Also memorable: The all-encompassing aerospace industry exhibits that covered a 20,000 sq. ft. area. It literally took six separate sessions to see them all—The Saturday night over-amplified "Sly and the Family Stone" rock concert in the Omni atrium that vibrated through the walls at each of AAAA's six 14th and 15th floor Saturday night Chapter hospitality suites and gave a few early-to-bedders some very unwanted entertainment . . . The equally unwelcome Saturday rains that made the hotel-to-Center bridge crossing in the open a dry cleaner's delight.

The '83 Awards Banquet Reception was something else, being held on the Omni's carpeted ice skating rink, a general public showplace in the center of the hotel's domed atrium. With a free, open-to-the-public 8 p.m. rock concert set up at the far end of the same rink, just about every 15-year-old Atlantan was there at 6:30 that night gawking at the Quad-A assemblage cocktailing in their dress blues, tux's, and gowns. The Awards Banquet was traditional, however . . . moments of humor . . . moments of pride . . . Unique: the attendees were called to dinner by a "Mess Call" played surprisingly well on a hunting horn by a Lieutenant General (He'd lost a Georgia-NC State basketball bet to another Lt. General.)

When all of their candles were finally lit and their ballroom lights dimmed at 8 p.m., the Omni staff consented to admit the 1,102 dinner guests who were surging outside the Ballroom doors since the 7:30 p.m. contracted time. It was Tuna-Pack for over 25 minutes and unforgettable! . . . Fortunately, a great filet mignon dinner and two complimentary bottles of wine at each table did much to turn the situation around.

Professional sessions? They were comprehensive and on time. The super posh GWCC auditorium (a Radio City Music Hall South) had excellent acoustics and a giant screen; it also had soft, deep, wide "First Class" seats that may have induced massive "Beddy Bye" whenever the lights dimmed and the early morning and late-afternoon slide shows began.

Professionally and socially, there was something at Atlanta '83 for everyone in attendance, and from the Thursday keynote address through Jim Smith's election as Nat'l President to the Sunday morning Champagne Brunch, the 1983 AAAA gathering appeared to be enjoyed by all, despite the rain.

Quad-A is booked into Washington in '84 and while Atlanta '83 will be hard to beat in programming, exhibits, and attendance, you can just bet we're going to try to top it.

The optoelectronic helicopter.

Boeing Vertol continues to press forward in the search for increased helicopter reliability and advanced performance. Now under development, helicopter control systems utilizing a marriage of fiber optics and digital electronics . . . optoelectronics . . . the next step beyond fly-by-wire.

The U.S. Army Applied Technology Laboratory is developing the advanced digital optical control system, or ADOCS, which further increases reliability by being impervious to electrical disturbances. Not only does ADOCS eliminate heavy mechanical linkages, its light weight and low cost permit multiple redundancy for extra protection against crippling enemy fire.

Prior to actual flight, ADOCS will be pre-tested on our moving-base flight simulator with its multi-window, map-of-the-earth display . . . the only one of its kind in the industry. It's another example of Boeing's leading edge, the restless search that has brought about fiberglass blades, composite structures, high-speed rotors, and electronic vibration suppression . . . a search that continues to develop bearingless main rotors, advanced cockpits, tilt rotor design and more. It's the search for the better helicopter, the Boeing priority.

POTPOURRI: ATLANTA, THE NEW BRANCH, AND MODERNIZATION (AAMP)

THIS is my final article for 'Army Aviation Magazine' as the Army Aviation Officer. I approach having to write it with regret, but also with anticipation for the future. In that I am just changing jobs within Army Aviation, leaving is not as difficult as it could be.

With my two year visit to the Pentagon drawing to a close, I am privileged to have been assigned to the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault) as the Assistant Division Commander for Operations; in fact, I hope to be on board at Fort Campbell sometime in June.

My time as the Deputy Director of Requirements in ODCSOPS has been as exciting as it has been busy. Being part of an active and vibrant Army insured that my two years in the job brought more than enough challenges. Those times and events will remain as vivid memories for years to come.

But it is good to push on to a place where I can put my boots back on! I won't be far away, and will be leaving the job here in good hands. Brigadier General Robert F. Mollinelli will continue to guide us through the significant modernization effort that is now underway.

In leaving you with some reflections of what we've been through and what is ahead, let me first say how great it was to spend a few days in Atlanta with a group that set records in both numbers and enthusiasm!

Our 25th AAAA National Convention in Atlanta will go down in the books as a memorable experience for all who attended. Professionally and socially, members of the aviation team who made the trip departed with both renewed dedication to see Army Aviation through, this key time in its history, and with the assurance of continued support from the top leaders of our Army.

The new Aviation Branch

Although it has been a long time in coming, I am excited about the Chief of Staff's recommendation, and the Secretary of the Army's decision, to recognize aviation as a basic branch of the Army. It is no longer a concept, but a reality!

On 12 April 1983, the Secretary of the Army signed the approval to add aviation as the 15th basic branch. The implementation plan is now being prepared for Chief of Staff approval so I cannot give you final details. But I will give you some

QUAD-A HONORS—CW2 NICK P. WALTERS, LEFT, IS PRESENTING AN ARMY AVIATION ASS'N PLAQUE DESIGNATING HIM AS THE DISTINGUISHED GRADUATE OF THE 101-MEMBER CLASS OF WO'S THAT COMPLETED AWOAC ON APRIL 27. basic points on what is being proposed in the implementation plan:

- First, as a corollary to the branch decision, the TRADOC Commander intends to centralize the great majority of aviation proponent responsibilities at the Aviation Center. Some responsibilities are to remain with the Health Services Command, the Intelligence and Signal Centers, and at Fort Eustis.

- The Aviation branch is a combat arm of the Army, but it will also provide combat support and combat service support to the combined arms team.

- When fully implemented, all aviation personnel will be members of the Aviation branch, with the exception of Medical Service Corps (MSC) aviators.

Most will enter the branch upon entry to active duty; approximately 15% of the commissioned aviators may come from branch transfers. Most aviators in today's force will be transferred to the new branch. Some aviators now serving may choose to remain in their current branch. However, specifics of the transfer process are yet to be determined.

Opportunities for females in the Aviation branch will continue in accordance with basic Army policies. The officers affected are holders of SC 15 and SC 71. Warrant Officers are those who hold MOS 100 series as well as 150A and 160A. Enlisted personnel with aviation specialties 66, 67, 68, 71P, 93E, 93H, and 93J will also be part of the new branch.

The remaining points will address only aviation commissioned officers, less MSC aviators who will continue to be managed as in the past.

- We will retain two aviation specialty codes: SC 15 and 71 while MSC aviators will retain SSI 67J. However, beginning in FY 84, it is planned that all aviators who enter the Army in the Aviation branch will receive SC 15.

SC 71 is to be a non-accession specialty awarded as an additional specialty to those who enter the aviation logistics career field beginning at the grade of captain. Some aviators are to be trained as lieutenants to fill aviation intelligence and signal positions. They will be trained and awarded the appropriate additional specialty prior to initial assignment.

- An aviation basic course (Lieutenant's training) is to be implemented in FY 87. It is to consist of an eight-week course prior to flight training. Until the course is established, aviators will continue to attend selected, but primarily combat arms, basic courses.

- The initial assignment following flight training is to be an operational flying position, preferably in a divisional aviation battalion.

- An aviation advanced course (Captain's training) is to be implemented in FY 85 and will be designed around six functional courses: Operations, Support, Company/Troop Command, Aviation Logistics, Air Traffic Control, and Aviation Military Intelligence. A series of one or more of these

SCIENCE/SCOPE

A helicopter equipped with a mast-mounted sight has fired TOW antitank missiles while hidden behind a barrier, thus exposing the pilot to minimum risk. The sight, designed by Hughes Aircraft Company for use with the airborne TOW (Tube-launched, Optically tracked, Wire-guided) missile system, has been mounted on a Hughes Helicopters 500MD Defender. It will let the helicopter hide behind trees and hills while scouting for targets.

Once a target is spotted, the gunner can fire a TOW and guide it with pinpoint precision. Only the sight is exposed to enemy radar and visual detection during the operation. The sight is stabilized to compensate for vibration of the rotor blades.

Military aircrews may soon be protected by a system that snuffs out explosions in half the time it takes the eye to blink. The device is based on the Dual Spectrum™ sensing and suppression system carried by U.S. Army M1 Abrams tanks and M2/M3 Bradley Fighting Vehicles. Two detectors monitor selected portions of the infrared radiation spectrum to detect explosions caused by warheads penetrating the aircraft's fuel tank or fuel lines.

The system won't respond to false alarms, such as the flash of projectiles that don't cause explosive fuel fires. Once an explosion has been detected, the system triggers the release of a gaseous-liquid substance to suppress the fire. The system was developed by the Santa Barbara Research Center, a Hughes subsidiary.

GOOD NEWS—Ed Brown (at lectern) announces at a Ft. Rucker news conference that $1 million has been collected towards the $2.5 million needed to begin construction on the new Army Aviation Museum. Others present at the May 5 conference were, l-r, retired COLs James O. Townsend and Max McCullar, Foundation officials; MG Carl H. McNair, Jr.; COL Eric Leach, Director of Industrial Operations and COL Joseph Koehler, Cdr, Safety Center and AAAA Chapter President, each of whom assisted in the Ft. Rucker fund-raising effort.

courses will be designed for each aviator, depending on the needs of the Army and projected career progression patterns.

- The objective is to develop sufficient aviators to enable company grade additional specialty training and/or utilization. Aviation and additional specialty assignments, CAS³, and graduate education opportunities would follow Captain's training.

- Field grade development and assignment policies will remain basically as they are now. The bottom line is that aviator professional development policies will be the same as those for all OPMS managed officers.

- "What will we wear on our collar?" is a question that has been asked a lot lately. There are three proposals being staffed right now. The approval, development, and distribution processes are to be expedited to the greatest extent possible.

- Final plans, once approved, will be published in a variety of sources and in greater detail than written here. My intention is to give you an idea of what is on the way.

The Aviation Officer's responsibilities are concentrated in the areas of identifying aviation system requirements, developing future systems, and managing and upgrading current systems. Obviously, the Aviation Team that works for me doesn't do this in a vacuum; the players on the larger team come from the major commands and all HQDA staff agencies.

One of the voids that we recently identified was the lack of a long range plan to help guide the way through the significant modernization effort upon which Army Aviation is now embarked. That void has recently been filled in the publication of the Army Aviation Modernization Plan (AAMP). This plan packages a series of ongoing aviation programs and presents a blueprint to help fulfill future aviation systems and organizational requirements.

Last year, the Army Aviation Mission Area Analysis (AAMAA) and the Army Aviation Systems Program Review (AASPR) identified where we are in the program and where we need to go. The AAMP is the road map on how we get there from here.

The AAMP has been briefed to senior Army commanders throughout the Army Staff, the Army Secretariat, and all the way to Congress. Its significance was succinctly summarized by the Under Secretary of the Army who stated that it should be the prototype for how we lay out every major program in the Army. We certainly intend to take full advantage of this effort in both planning and executing, as well as in justifying our program before Congress.

Some tough issues ahead

We have made some dramatic gains in Army Aviation over the last few years and I look for that to continue. I believe as a community, we have been open to change for the better, and supportive of those changes that have been made, particularly in the areas of standardization, the ATM program, safety, distribution plans for new systems, and the flying hour program.

That sense of unity and cooperation is certainly encouraging, and I am confident that it will carry over to the challenges that lay before us.

From my perspective, there are three key activities that continue to require the concentrated efforts of the entire aviation community:

- Increasing aviation effectiveness — systems and tactics.
- Fielding the Combat Brigade (Air Attack) (CBAA) in our divisions.
- Transitioning to a branch and centralizing aviation proponent responsibilities.

As we transition to new organizations and a new management plan, responsiveness to the user must always stay at the top of our priority list. The modernization effort to date has given Army Aviation the potential for fire and maneuver as a combat arm.

But we also provide an infinite number of other capabilities to our ground combat units as part of the combined arms team. Our challenge has been, and will always be, to continually increase our effectiveness to meet our fire, maneuver, and support responsibilities.

It is essential that we maintain our orientation toward the ground gaining arms by meeting user needs and improving our responsiveness, while continuing to build maximum capability into our systems. Never forget the soldier!

The CBAA is proving to be as good in the field as it looked on paper through each design iteration. Battalion commanders at Fort Lewis are excited about being able to concentrate their time on training and being in a position to be "active" on the battlefield. That makes a difference!

We need to keep pushing!

The vast majority of work to complete our transition to this fighting organization still lies ahead of us. We need to keep pushing to complete it in a timely manner, with minimum disruption, and with the view that it is integrating aviation into the division to a greater extent than ever before.

Our task in transitioning to a new branch and centralizing proponent responsibilities at the Aviation Center closely parallels that of moving to the CBAA. We must "stay in bed" with the training and doctrine developers of all the branches to insure we do not think or act in a vacuum.

The new commander of the Aviation Center, Major General Bobby J. "Bo" Maddox, will need our total support as he executes the centralization plan within TRADOC and develops the training program.

I feel good about our current posture and am very optimistic that the years ahead of us promise even greater achievements. As we progress in the area I mentioned earlier, we must insure we don't lose momentum as we go, but rather build on what we already have. Every step we take has to be by design and plan, and not by accident or through default. The intensity of our efforts must never be dimmed. Fly safely! ■■■■

A SPECIAL RADIO FOR A SPECIAL MISSION.

THE KING AN ARC-199

The Need: An HF radio that meets the rigorous communications requirements for the U.S. Army's nap of the earth [NOE] mission.

The Objective: Keep Army helicopters in touch with Army ground forces. Because these NOE helicopter missions are flown at and below treetop level, an HF radio (instead of line-of-sight UHF/VHF) is needed. And a special HF at that. One that can be operated with telephone like simplicity and reliability.

The Catch: Because the system must be operational as soon as possible, the Army specifies a "non-developmental" [virtually off-the-shelf] radio for both aircraft and ground vehicles. And the radio must have preset channels, selective squelch, variable power outputs, Mil-Std 1553 data bus, Parkhill compatibility, multiple selective addressing and preset channel scanning. It must also have growth potential for frequency agility, frequency link analysis, automated communications electronic operating instructions and other features to make it a truly ADAPTIVE HF SYSTEM.

The Winner? King Radio Corporation. King wins over tough competition from Collins and Gould. But King entered the competition with a real advantage—the most advanced commercial HF radio in its class. The KHF 950 represents the leading edge of new HF technology. King 950s are already performing in over 800 aircraft even though the radio was only introduced in 1981. The two mil-spec Army radios to be derived from the KHF 950 (the airborne AN/ARC-199 and the ground based AN/VRC-86) will have such advanced features as CRT displays and keyboard tuning—all in a 30 pound airborne package. And these radios will be available in 1983—in record time.

For more information about how we can adapt our HF products to meet your military requirements contact: Dan Rodgers, Special Programs Department, King Radio Corporation, 400 North Rogers Road, Olathe, Kansas 66062, (800) 255-6243, Telex WUD (0) 4-2299 Cable: KINGRAD.

THE OUTSTANDING AVIATION UNIT

At the 1982 Awards Banquet I mentioned that the trophy for our next award, the "Outstanding Aviation Unit Award" trophy, had been retired, i.e., it would no longer leave the confines of the Continental U.S.

I don't think I told you the reason for the action at the time. Getting it overseas and back in those years in which it was won by an APO unit proved to be a multi-service logistic exercise that, sooner or later, would have been the subject of a media event. While it still can be won and displayed by aviation units in the U.S., it will be retained in the Aviation Museum whenever it's won by a unit outside of the 48 States.

The 1982 winner just happens to be a unit assigned to U.S. Army, Europe, but thanks to the sponsors of this trophy, Hughes Helicopters, Inc., the officers and men of the 70th will take home a most handsome replica while the big bowl will go back on a pedestal in the Aviation Museum during the coming year.

To present our Association's most prestigious award, the Quad-A is proud to again have the Deputy Commanding General of U.S. Army Forces Command and the Commanding General of Third Army — one and the same person — on hand to assist us in our award ceremonies. This is the third consecutive year that Lieutenant General Collier Ross has presented one of our major national awards.

He really is one of us . . . The "Honorary Army Aviator" plaque and prop we presented him last year occupy a prominent place in his office, and I've heard that he has since hung up some wings as well. I don't think he's soloed as yet. Flight time he may not have, but enthusiasm for Army Aviation and Quad-A he does have. I assure you that the success of this meeting in professional terms is due in large part to his behind-the-scenes participation.

I would like you to welcome Lieutenant General Collier Ross.

Remarks of LT. General Ross:

Thank you, President Marr . . . and Jack Mackmull, how about them Dawgs? Oh well, at least we're not Governors. It was my privilege late Thursday to welcome you to our fair city of Atlanta. I am not Andy Young, but "Welcome!" anyway to those of you who didn't get to hear me then. It was my privilege to open the sessions here on Thursday and again it's my privilege tonight to close with the presentation of this award to the 70th Transportation Battalion (AVIM) of the United States Army, Europe.

"If the 70th can't fix it, it can't be fixed," might well say it all about this unit. But before I make the award to them with the help of President John Marr, let me just say that this has been a super gathering. It seems to me that the correct issues have been raised and discussed, and we might even know where we are and where we want to go.

Needed: A game plan

But now we need to get our brains together and come up with some kind of game plan. Most coaches understand bench strength. I'm not certain that all of our commanders understand bench strength, but it seems to me that is one of our basic weaknesses at this point in time.

Our bench strength is no longer the Reserve Components — they're on the first team. Our bench strength needs to be a superabundance of equipment or an ability to produce a superabundance of equipment in a short period of time. Because if we fail to do either, it seems to me that we cannot successfully prosecute a war of any great intensity.

It also seems to me that we plan for the future with no wars in mind and we're comfortable with saying that our problems will be solved in the late 1980's or the early 1990's . . . and that programs are the sine qua non of readiness and not the budget that is currently being executed.

The 70th is ready!

But I would say to you tonight, who knows as Tom Paine once said, when the tree of liberty next needs to be watered with the blood of its countrymen. And I certainly don't think that anyone here tonight can answer that question.

But I would tell you if this should occur soon, the 70th Battalion is ready. It stretches from Norway to Greece and from the United Kingdom to Berlin. And it's doing its job as well as any unit that we have in our Army.

And we have gathered here tonight to honor the new inductees to the Hall of Fame and the individuals and units that are represented at this head table. I think it might be well for us to remember once again, that to be born free is an accident, to live free is a responsibility, and to die free is an obligation.

The 70th is prepared to do that today as I am certain that every member of the Army team has been in the past and is tonight, and will continue to be in the future.

So I am proud to present on behalf of Quad-A to LTC Bill Turner and CSM Hulon Jackson the Army Aviation Association of America "Outstanding Aviation Unit of the Year Award." But I would say to you that this unit merely represents the standard of excellence that we have come to expect from our aviation units serving throughout the Free World.

Remarks of Lieutenant Colonel Turner:

General Ross, Colonel Marr, ladies and gentlemen, fellow members in the Quad-A. It is with great pride that CSM Jackson and I accept this award for the men and women of the 70th Transportation Battalion (AVIM).

Our 70th Battalion is a very unique organization. It is probably the only organization like it in the Army structure. There are professional soldiers, professional U.S. civilians, and a great number of highly dedicated local national and German workers and technicians in our organization. Not only is the Battalion the most extensive repair facility in USAREUR Aviation Logistics chain, unlike other Transportation (AVIM) Battalions, we provide tactical aviation service as well international air transport service throughout the European theater with a fleet of both rotary wing and fixed wing aircraft.

Additionally, our missions require us to maintain and operate three airfields in USAREUR, one of which Coleman Army Airfield, is the busiest by traffic volume. We cannot do that of course without great confidence, resources, and the close cooperation and assistance from numerous agencies in the aviation channels: DARCOM; the special assistance, such as the civilians that were noted from Corpus Christi Army Depot earlier this evening; TSARCOM Headquarters, DARCOM Headquarters; and the confidence of the Commanders that are assigned over us.

We truly believe that our aviation mission and responsibilities are as diversified as any battalion-size organization in the Army today. We in the 70th Transportation Battalion take great pride in living up to our motto, "Life Line to the Front Line".

On behalf of all the members of the 70th, I would like to extend our heartfelt appreciation to Hughes Helicopters, Inc., for the sponsorship of this award, and the National Awards Committee of the Army Aviation Association of America for our selection over the many highly qualified aviation units for recognition as the "Outstanding Aviation Unit of the Year." Thank you.

SEMA

Meet AN/ASN-132, Litton's new inertial navigation squawk-stopper.

The best inertial navigation system for SEMA applications in 1968 was the AN/ASN-86.

Fifteen-year-old reliability can cause squawks.

For what we considered good then is not what we consider good now.

High technology has improved and progressed at an unprecedented pace. Operational requirements have intensified.

An aggressive breed of pilots wants the best possible equipment at their finger tips. Prudent commanders want the same thing, but for lowest possible life-cycle-costs.

Litton's new AN/ASN-132 satisfies both requirements.

ROBERT LEICH SPECIAL AWARD

As you know, our "Outstanding Aviation Unit Award," which will be presented later this evening is awarded for accomplishments in the previous calendar year. This rules out many, many units whose long term service to those in Army Aviation is well known.

Hence, the Ass'n has seen fit periodically to cite an Army Aviation unit for the unique accomplishments it has made over a sustained period. We cite such a unit tonight with our "Special Award."

As some of you know, the award was renamed this past February as a result of a National Board action. Major General Story C. Stevens, Commander of the U.S. Army Aviation Research and Development Command, is here with us tonight to present this award and I will ask General Stevens to elaborate on the name change.

Remarks of Major General Stevens:

Although this award has been presented a number of times over the past years, this is the first time that it has been designated as the Robert M. Leich Special Award. General Bob Leich was one of the original Army Aviators, a member of the "Class before Class 1" in 1942.

Bob Leich went on to establish many firsts. He was the first maintenance engineering officer at Fort Sill and the first Army Aviator to serve in the Pentagon. He was also the first National President of Quad-A, serving two consecutive terms. He was also the Chairman of its National Awards Committee for 22 years and was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1977.

Bob Leich recognized the importance of having an organization to further the goals of Army Aviation and to bring together its diverse elements in strong bonds of dedication, professionalism, and camaraderie. When he was told of the decision to name the Special Award in his honor, shortly before his death last month, he was deeply touched. So in tribute to his many years of selfless service, I would like to present the first Robert M. Leich Special Award to AVRADCOM's Aviation Engineering Flight Activity at Edwards AFB, CA.

Since 1960, AEFA has provided outstanding engineering flight test support not only for the Army, but also for DOD, NASA, and the civilian aviation community. Over the years it has evolved into the primary source of expertise for rotary wing performance and flying qualities testing, providing essential information to the user, decision maker, and aircraft designer for the advancement of aviation.

The results of AEFA testing are seen daily by Army Aviators as they prepare performance cards using flight test data from manuals.

Not seen, however, are those deficiencies and shortcomings discovered early in the development cycle by test pilots and engineers which allowed the problems to be remedied at the least cost prior to production decisions.

Some of AEFA's notable achievements include the LOH, UTTAS, and AAH flyoffs leading to our present Scout, BLACK HAWK, and APACHE helicopters. It also provides the authoritative performance, stability, and control data base for all Army aircraft, and the development and utilization of the unique helicopter icing spray system. The dedication of its military and civilian personnel to Army Aviation throughout AEFA's 23 years is well documented and most deserving of this recognition.

Here to accept the first Robert M. Leich Special Award is Colonel Lew McConnell, the AEFA Commander.

Remarks of Colonel McConnell:

Thank you, General Stevens. Distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen. It's really a great privilege to be awarded this most distinguished award this evening, and as General Stevens said, it's named in honor of Robert M. Leich who was one of the very staunch supporters of Army Aviation and the Quad-A throughout his years with us.

I want you to know that we're deeply appreciative of this award and the people of AEFA for the past 23 years have certainly done their very best to provide the best equipment to Army Aviation. I can assure you, as Army Aviation continues to grow in the years ahead, that the people at AEFA will continue to do their part to provide the best equipment possible.

At this time I'd also like to thank the people in the higher headquarters . . . AVRADCOM, the people in DARCOM, the DA staff for their support. I'd also like to recognize the Edwards Flight Test Center, NASA, and the FAA for the help they've given AEFA, particularly in recent years.

COL Lewis J. McConnell, left, accepts the first "Robert M. Leich Special Award" from MG Story C. Stevens, AVRADCOM Commander, on behalf of the men and women of the USA Aviation Engineering Flight Activity at Edwards AFB, California.

Lastly, I want to thank the folks from the aviation industry with whom we work on these tests for their excellent cooperation. It has truly been a great experience and we're really deeply honored to receive this.

Now this evening, we have two of the former commanders here that I'd like to recognize at this time, and I would ask Colonel Cyril D. Stapleton and Colonel Dennis Boyle to please stand. It's really great for Quad-A to have these gentlemen here at this ceremony. Colonel Stapleton resides right near here in Dunwoody, GA, and Denny got out of the Mojave and now basks in the sun down in San Diego.

It is truly a great honor and on behalf of all the people at AEFA, past and present, thank you very much for this award.

OUTSTANDING RC AVIATION UNIT

REMARKS of Col. John W. Marr, AAAAA National President: In 1970 the Army Aviation Association established an aviation unit award for excellence within the Reserve Components.

The award has been sponsored by the Ass'n in the twelve intervening years, and early this year, the Avco Lycoming Division offered to sponsor this award on a permanent basis. The National Executive Board approved the offer and as your President, I would like to thank Avco Lycoming publicly for this most welcome sponsorship.

The award is presented annually to the aviation unit that has made an outstanding contribution to or innovation in the employment of Reserve Component Army Aviation over and above the normal mission assigned to the unit.

To assist in presenting the Reserve Component award tonight for calendar year 1982, we are honored to have Lieutenant General La Vern E. Weber, Deputy Commanding General, Mobilization Planning at Forces Command, who wishes to introduce three very proud people. Ladies and gentlemen, General Weber.

MG William R. Berkman, Chief, Army Reserve, cites the 138th Aviation Company as LTG Weber, SFC Dennis, and MAJ Johnson stand by.

Remarks of Lieutenant General Weber:

President Marr, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen. I am deeply honored and it is a great privilege to have the opportunity to participate this evening as we recognize very dually the truly Outstanding Reserve Component Aviation Unit of the United States Army. It has been my great pleasure through the past couple of days to have had an opportunity to associate with Sergeant (James E.) Dennis, the Senior NCO of the 138th, and tonight to have the privilege of meeting Major (Arthur S.) Johnson, the unit's Commander.

As a reminder to Quad-A, 60% of the aircraft in the Forces Command are found in the Reserve Components.

Lt. Gen. La Vern E. Weber, DCG, Mobilization Planning, USA FORSCOM, introducing the representatives of the "Outstanding Reserve Component Aviation Unit."

Likewise, 60% of the individuals who fly Forces Command aircraft are found in the Reserve Components, and they in fact fly 50% of the flying hours of Forces Command.

How well do they do? Exceedingly well. They compete very well as we address the standards of flying safety in the operational readiness rates that FORSCOM asks of our units.

It is a very distinct honor tonight to be with you and to ask Major General William R. Berkman, the Chief of Army Reserve, to join me here and say a few words to you as we are joined by Major Johnson, the Unit Commander of the 138th Aviation Company of Orlando, FL, and his Senior NCO, Sergeant First Class James E. Dennis. Will you all join me at the podium, please.

Lt. Gen. La Vern E. Weber, left, and Maj. Gen. William R. Berkman, right, co-present the 1982 "Reserve Component Aviation Unit Award" to SFC James E. Dennis and Maj. Arthur S. Johnson, the Sr NCO and Commander, 138th Avn Co (EW), FL-USAR.

Remarks of Major General Berkman:

Thank you, General Weber. Before we get to the award, we also have another individual in the audience that I'd like to acknowledge, and that is Sandy Dennis, the wife of First Sergeant Dennis. Sandy really represents, by her presence here, the wives and family members of all members of the Reserve Components.

Without the support of those wives and families, the accomplishments of the Reservists really would not be possible. It's that support — and the support of employers — that is so vitally important to what the Reserve program is doing as part of the total Army, and I'd just like to have Sandy stand up and be acknowledged.

The 138th Aviation Company (Electronic Warfare), Orlando, FL, is a unique organization. It has special capabilities, and has had impressive accomplishments. Indeed, it epitomizes the professionalism of Army Reserve Aviation and Reserve Components Aviation.

I am proud, tremendously proud, of their accomplishments and I congratulate all unit members for the recognition that this prestigious association, Quad-A, is according them this evening.

So my congratulations to the Commander and the First Sergeant and all members of the 138th Aviation Company.

Remarks of Major Arthur S. Johnson:

Thank you again and on behalf of the 244 men and women of the 138th Aviation Company, I would like to thank the Association for this award. Very briefly, if I can give you just a little bit of history about the unit. The history of the 138th goes back a long way, but its Reserve career began in Orlando in 1974.

We started with 17 RU-8s and in 1979 we stepped up to the U-21, and it's been an uphill climb for us because as Reserve Components it's not every day that we have the opportunity to fly U-21 aircraft, so it was a big step for us.

Our mission is to provide the electronic warfare support for the many joint training exercises that are conducted throughout the U.S. Also, we really wouldn't be here is if wasn't for the support that we got from the Aviation Support Facility that provides the aircraft maintenance support and the standardization support that we get in Orlando. Again, thank you very much for this very prestigious award. ■■■■

IGW PRECISION YOU RELY ON

Since 1933 the aircraft and aerospace industries have relied on the manufacturing services of IGW for a full range of inflight power actuation and drive systems. Unlike most gear makers, our services provide the capability to produce complete transmissions and components under one roof. In-house production affords the flexibility required to ensure that your critical schedules will be maintained and the IGW Quality Assurance system will be enforced during all phases...from receipt of order to delivery.

Combine quality with price consciousness, and you get economy and reliability. For information on how IGW reliability can work for you, call David Keith, Vice President-Marketing, 317-898-9000.

THE DAC OF THE YEAR AWARD

THE Army Aviation Association is aware of the many contributions made by the several thousand Department of the Army Civilians to the overall Army Aviation Program, and in 1977 established a separate "Outstanding Department of the Army Civilian of the Year Award."

In 1981, the Boeing Vertol Company offered to sponsor the award trophy on a permanent basis and it became one of four trophies that were introduced at that year's Awards Banquet.

I'd like to point out that all six of the Association's trophies are kept on permanent display in the Army Aviation Museum throughout the year, and that each awardee receives a suitable replica or plaque for permanent retention. Let me again thank the Boeing Vertol Company publicly for their support of our awards recognition program.

To present this year's award for an outstanding calendar year 1982 effort by a Department of the Army Civilian is Lieutenant General James H. Merryman, the Deputy Chief of Staff for Research, Development and Acquisition.

Many of you may not realize it but Jim's really put in a full day for Quad-A. He was the guest speaker at seven this morning at our initial "First Light Breakfast", a function for the representatives of our industry member firms and selected senior officers. And here he is, 14½ hours later at the lectern again. If only to wake up those 85 industry members who were also at that same seven a.m. breakfast, let's hear a resounding round of applause for Jim Merryman.

Remarks of Lieutenant General Merryman:

When I heard John's remarks earlier this evening referring to my appearance here three years ago, it was a rather humorous evening because I sat right over there, and if you recall, the doors to the kitchens were right behind us and they didn't have any windows on the doors. And so, as often as not, the waiters coming in and the waiters going out met each other and we had steaks galore on the floor behind us. And for a while there it got kind of risky for those of us sitting up here because steaks were flying over the table and almost hitting the people in the front row.

The AAAA's 1982 "Department of the Army Civilian of the Year," Mr. Frank Soliz, and his wife, Bonnie, receive a welcome from the Awards Banquet audience on entering the ballroom.

I really can't imagine, however, why John Marr thought I'd have anything humorous to say tonight though having been back in the Pentagon for two years on my fourth tour, or the Puzzle Palace as it is more appropriately known. So I sat there and I said John wants me to say something funny and I said, "What the devil have I heard funny in the last few days having just gotten off the Hill after about four weeks of constant appearances?"

And I recall one thing that I think the ladies will appreciate perhaps as much or more than the men, and that is my wife being on one of these exercise kicks — you know Jane Fonda, the music you know, and all that sort of thing. And she's got all the other wives at Fort McNair organized to do that.

I walked in the other day and I heard them saying, "10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 2 . . . 10, 9, 8, 5, 4, 3, 1." and I walked over and I said, "What are you all talking about?"

This is crazy. What do you mean: 10, 9, 6, 5, 4, 3, 1?" And they looked at me like I was a nut and they said, "Bo Derek's getting old."

In a more serious vein, let me talk to you about why I am up here tonight and that is to present — if not the most significant award of the evening — one that we in this community need to understand is an award that is for an individual who contributed probably before most of us arrived, and who will contribute after most of us are gone.

Far too often there are some who think of the Army as those in the green suit or the blue suit. Fortunately, most of us understand that the real strength of the Army are the green and blue suiters and the guy that doesn't wear either, but is the guy who is the Army civilian . . . the man or lady who's there before you and the man or lady who's there after you depart.

An exceptional individual

Tonight, the award that I am here to present is to made to Mr. Frank Soliz, one of those exceptional individuals. This gentleman comes from Corpus Christi, Tex., the depot that does an outstanding job and has a reputation the world over, and has a reputation in Washington like no other depot that I know of there, and this individual has a reputation at that depot above all others there, and above all other individuals involved in Army Aviation this year.

This man developed, trained, equipped, and managed his engine division to produce quality turbine engines consistently despite numerous pitfalls which would have deterred a less dedicated man. To put it in a nutshell, he encountered all kinds of problems this past year because we kept demanding more from him and we didn't provide him the wherewithal to produce.

Only through his ingenuity did he come up with ways to produce the same number of engines, or to overhaul the same number of engines that we required without the additional dollars that he needed or the additional wherewithal. His engine test cells, for example, today turn out twice as many, I repeat, twice as many as they did last year only because of his ingenuity.

In addition to that, this past year he ran a system where he had total contact with the field so that rather than having to send people out in the field constantly, the people could call in, tell him what the problems were and he could tell the people how to solve the problems, and these procedures saved Uncle Sam all kinds of dollars, and in one particular case, $10 million by just telephonic troubleshooting, turbine engine field assistance teams.

To give you one example of the kinds of singular capability this individual has is if you remember when the volcano went up out on the West Coast the year before last, he ran into a situation where he had 260 T-53 engines that had to be fixed in a hurry because they had problems caused by sand and ash impaction, and on short notice, he devised a way to handle these engines, and to get them back in the field ASAP with minimal cost to the government.

It is with great pleasure and it is my honor, on behalf of the Chief of Staff of the Army, to introduce Mr. Frank Soliz, the "Outstanding Department of the Army Civilian of the Year."

Remarks of Mr. Frank Soliz:

Would you please allow me a couple of seconds to come down from that cloud?

I would like to accept this award on behalf of the 3,600 folks that work at Corpus Christi Army Depot, particularly those that work in the engine division who have worked closely with me and have supported me for so many years. There are so many people in this audience here tonight who I know for many years have made this award possible. So I will not attempt to name names.

I'd like to give a special thanks to my Commander, Colonel Niles Clark, my Chapter President of the Corpus Christi Chapter, and all those folks that supported my nomination. It is indeed an honor for me to be here, and believe me, when you're a South Texas kid coming from the cotton fields, it's a long way to the podium at this National Convention. I thank you all so much. ■■■■

AVIATION SOLDIER OF THE YEAR

IT'S always a pleasure to honor a true aviation professional, to single out an outstanding individual and recognize his superlative performance. We honor such an individual tonight in honoring this year's "Aviation Soldier of the Year," in recognizing Sergeant First Class Ronald Boese.

The actual award that he will receive is sponsored by Bell Helicopter Textron with the handsome permanent trophy being returned to the Army Aviation Museum for full-year display.

Tonight's presenter is an old aviator, an old friend of many in the audience, and an old hand at making uncomfortable people comfortable. I will never ever forget his warm and spontaneous effort to make last year's "Soldier" relax. He said then:

"I want to ask your sympathy and forbearance. We're both quite nervous standing up here tonight. As a matter of fact, we're so nervous that we couldn't finish our dinners. I finished all of mine, but I was only able to eat half of the sergeant's."

SFC Ronald Boese, the "Aviation Soldier of the Year," and his wife, Patra, are introduced from the head table on entering the Grand Ballroom.

Ladies and gentlemen, please welcome one of our most senior aviators and a former National Vice President of this Association, the Commander of I Corps and Fort Lewis, Washington, Lieutenant General John N. Brandenburg.

Remarks of Lieutenant General Brandenburg:

Thank you, President Marr. Ladies and gentlemen, I've been privileged now for two years in a row to be able to present the award to the "Aviation Soldier of the Year" and I am most grateful to the Association for bestowing this honor on me and to Bell Helicopter for its sponsorship.

As John Marr said, this year's winner of the award is Sergeant First Class Ronald L. Boese. Sergeant Boese is a platoon sergeant of the Aeroscout Platoon with the Combat Aviation Troop, the 11th Armored Cav Regiment from Fulda, Germany. I think at this time I would like to introduce his wife, Patra, who is seated down in front, and have all of you give her a warm welcome.

They've come a long way from Fulda. The Boeses have a 10-year-old son, and they've left him back there. I'm sure they are a little anxious to know how he is doing, but I imagine they are enjoying the rest away from him.

A 16-year veteran

Ron is 33 years old, has done almost 16 years of service, and of that 16 years, about 12½ of it has been spent overseas in Vietnam and Germany. He is a qualified crewchief on the OH-6, the H-23, the OH-58, and the Huey, and in addition to that he is a qualified aviation mechanic instructor. He told me that with his instructor's background that he wouldn't be nervous tonight and that he'd be comfortable on the platform. He ate all of his steak so I know he's going to be all right.

Sergeant First Class Ronald Boese, the "Aviation Soldier of the Year," is shown with Lieutenant General John N. Brandenburg, I Corps Commander.

I read some of the nomination papers that were provided to me and I believe that the recommendation of Ron's Troop Commander probably sums up as good as we could exactly what his qualifications are and why he was chosen as this year's recipient of the "Aviation Soldier of the Year Award" and it goes like this: "Sergeant First Class Ronald L. Boese is nominated for the Army Aviation Association of America Award as Aviation Soldier of the Year for his significant and valuable contribution to Combat Aviation Troop, 11th ACR, V SOLDIER/Continued on Page 61)

Q. What similar purchase have more than 12,000 Army Aviators made in the past 15 years?

A. They've purchased AAAA-endorsed flight pay insurance. As an active duty or or as a Reserve Component Army Aviator, don't you think you owe it to yourself to get the basic facts about this coverage which has returned more than $2 million in lost flight pay to claimants?

All it costs is a stamp.

LADD AGENCY, INC.
1 CRESTWOOD ROAD WESTPORT, CONN.

Gentlemen:

Please forward me the pertinent details of the AAAA-endorsed flight pay insurance coverage.

- I am on flying status with a U.S. Army unit. I am an AAAA member.
 I am a student pilot undergoing Army flight training.

AVIATION SOLDIER

Corps, and the U.S. Army Europe during 1982. As the Platoon Sergeant for the Aeroscout Platoon, SFC Boese has performed above and beyond that which was expected. He has developed unique and innovative training and maintenance programs that have significantly improved the overall readiness posture of Combat Aviation Troop. Through several major training exercises and inspections, SFC Boese's personal interest has enabled Combat Aviation Troop to lead the way in many aspects of aviation maintenance and combat readiness. He is the epitome of the professional Army Aviation Soldier. SFC Boese's superb achievements should not go unnoticed. He deserves the recognition as the "Aviation Soldier of the Year."

I think for his immediate Commander to say that pretty well sums it up.

You know that we senior officers think that we like to take the credit for being the ones that keep Army Aviation on an even keel . . . And the unit commanders, the Aviation Unit Commanders, know that they're responsible for it. Aviators are inclined to take credit for most of our achievements, but as we all know, the real backbone of Army Aviation and what really makes it all tick, are Aviation Soldiers.

I'm extremely honored and privileged tonight to be able to introduce to you this year's winner of this award, Sergeant First Class Ron Boese.

Lt. Gen. M.C. Ross, the Deputy Commander of FORSCOM, delivers the Banquet's principal address.

Remarks of SFC Ronald L. Boese:

Distinguished guests, lovely ladies, fellow Association members, good evening. Tonight I'd like to take a minute of your time to thank you for my selection as "Aviation Soldier of the Year." It is an honor and a privilege to accept this award.

In the course of my 15 years in Army Aviation serving in Europe, United States, and Asia, I've had the opportunity to meet and soldier with many of the Army's finest. From those professionals I learned firsthand just what the Sergeant business really was.

Since then I have tried my best to emulate those professionals and provide my soldiers with the highest caliber of leadership and guidance that had been passed on to me. Thus, will I say thank you to this assemblage. I must also say thank you to the officers, the NCOs, and the soldiers in Army Aviation with whom I have served and to whom I owe so much.

I would like to especially say thank you to the Aeroscout Platoon, Combat Aviation Troop, 11th ACR, for it's been their hard work and willingness to sacrifice that have allowed me to be here tonight. Thank you again and good evening. IIIII

ARMY AVIATOR OF YEAR AWARD

THE Army Aviator of the Year Award" is presented annually to the Army Aviator who has made an outstanding individual contribution to our program during the previous calendar year.

We're indebted to the Sikorsky Aircraft Division of United Technologies Corporation for this permanent award. The trophy they sponsored bears the names of the 24 previous winners of this award and I have to say it again . . . It is a very beautiful trophy.

We are indeed fortunate to have this award presented once again by one of our most senior aviators, a man who has done it all. Very few of our Army's officers, yet alone aviators, are as familiar with airborne operations, special forces operations, personnel administration, and aviation logistics and support as he is. Young aviators today would do well to emulate his career.

Ladies and gentlemen, the Commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg, Lieutenant General Jack V. Mackmull.

Remarks of Lieutenant General Mackmull:

Thank you, John. When you were introducing me, first of all I thought perhaps you were talking about Bob Williams and I thought perhaps I might not have to say anything. But, ladies and gentlemen, it is a real privilege for me tonight to nominate as the Army Aviation Association of America's "Aviator of the Year Award" winner, Second Lieutenant Richard G. Hatch.

Our nominee this year has had a very unusual career and I'd like to tell you his story because it is a real success story. 2LT Hatch entered the Army in 1969 as an aircraft repairman and was subsequently assigned to the 15th Aviation Group in Germany. Then later on he went to Vietnam with the 1st Cav Division where he was nominated and received the honor of being selected as the Army Aviation Association of America's "Soldier of the Year" in October of 1972.

2LT Richard G. Hatch, the 1982 "Army Aviator of the Year," walks down the banquet center aisle on being introduced by President Marr.

Next he entered flight school in March of 1973 as a Warrant Officer Candidate and upon graduation served again in Germany as an Air Mission Commander and Aircraft Maintenance Officer in a special ammunition support command. Returning to the States in November of 1977, CW2 Hatch was assigned to the 1st Cavalry Division of Fort Hood as an Aircraft Maintenance Officer in the 1/9th Cav.

In August of 1979 he was assigned as Tac Officer at Fort Rucker where he was personally responsible for graduating over 250 Warrant Officer Candidates and getting them their start in Army Aviation. In March of 1981, CW3 Hatch was assigned to the Maintenance Surveillance Branch of DIO at Fort Rucker, where he was responsible for supervising a $48 million contract.

In 1982 CW3 Hatch was assigned as the OIC of the fiberglass rotorblade modification team which was started at Fort Rucker and then went to Fort Campbell under a contract. Little was known about the rotor blade or its effect on the aircraft. A lot of this was empirical and was done by Hatch and his troops as to what blade settings they needed and it was a pretty sporty operation until he and his troops got it all squared away. The conventional blade settings resulted in the rear end of the helicopter coming up, fixed that; the front end came up, fixed that; the total settings of the blades were absolutely different.

Next, in 1982, we again call upon his managerial and maintenance expertise and this time he was the Project Officer in charge of an AH-1 maintenance team, directly responsible for supervising and coordinating the selected people from FORSCOM, a contractor at Fort Rucker, the U.S. Customs Services, and his own unit working in a joint effort to apply various modifications to an AH-1G Cobra to be used by the U.S.

Customs in the Vice President's war against drug infiltration and smuggling from South America.

This program, I might add, was successful, was completed before and ahead of schedule, and is continuing at this time.

Finally, one of the most important things . . . During March of 1982, Rick completed his BS Degree in Aviation Management and in so doing, qualified for a direct commission in the grade of Captain. This selection board convened in exception to policy in the 10-20 rule by the Secretary of the Army. Rick was selected as one of 14 and was promoted to the grade of Captain in the Transportation Corps on 20 August 1982.

However, because of the SGAs interpretation of DOTMA, he was immediately demoted to Second Lieutenant and it's going to require an act of Congress in order to get him back to his Captaincy which he feels quite certain will be forthcoming. In any respect, he has elected to retain his Second Lieutenant rank until he straightens the whole mess out.

So, Ladies and Gentlemen, it is my pleasure to introduce to you this year's Army Aviation Association of America's "Aviator of the Year," Second Lieutenant Richard G. Hatch.

Lieutenant Richard G. Hatch.

Remarks of Second Lieutenant Hatch:

Thank you, General Mackmull. Distinguished guests, fellow members, ladies and Gentlemen. I thank you for this great honor which you have bestowed upon me this evening. I accept this award with a great deal of personal pride and humility.

I have been honored tonight as an individual and I fully recognize, at least for this year, I'm representing all the aviators in the U.S. Army . . . A group that is truly dedicated and is a truly professional group of people.

I wish to thank my Chapter President, Colonel Patty Brown; the selection committee; and Mr. Kesten and his lovely wife, Dotty, for their hospitality and assistance during my stay here. I would also like to give recognition right now to those individuals from Fort Rucker who nominated me for this highly coveted award, specifically LTC Ed Goth and CPT Lou Bottom of DIOALV at Fort Rucker.

I'll cherish this award and the principles for which it stands for the rest of my life. Again, thank you very much. IIIII

TEN ARE INDUCTED INTO THE AVIATION HALL OF FAME

April 8 ceremonies at a 25th National Convention Induction Luncheon are witnessed by a record-breaking 620 attendees

IT'S now my pleasure to introduce my fellow Trustees, each of which is a member of the Army Aviation Hall of Fame. The first is LTG John Norton, Ret.

The first three of these Trustees you will see were all, by accident, Commanding Generals of the 1st Cavalry Division in the heavy fighting in Vietnam. That Division was the most modern and most effective combat division then on the surface of the earth.

Next is LTG John J. Tolson, III. After commanding the 1st Cavalry Division, he became the commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps.

The next Trustee is MG George W.

REMARKS OF GENERAL HAMILTON H. HOWZE, RET., CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE ARMY AVIATION HALL OF FAME.

Putnam, Jr. He had before the 1st Cavalry Division the command of the 1st Aviation Brigade in Vietnam. After Vietnam he commanded SETAF, the Southern European Task Force of NATO.

I neglected to say that LTG Norton, after he got back from Vietnam and somewhat later, served as Commanding General of the Army's Combat Development Command.

The next is CW4 "Mel" Cook. This gentleman had two tours in Vietnam and was known throughout the Army as an outstanding pilot, later becoming the pilot of the Secretary of the Army.

The next is Mr. Joseph P. Cribbins. Joe Cribbins is a retired lieutenant colonel of the Army, and is known very, very broadly as "Mr. Army Aviation Logistics."

And the last is Mr. Frank Piasecki, except that he is not here and could not be present today.

1983-1986 INDUCTEE
JEROME R. DALY
LT. COLONEL, RET. — OAKTON, VA

CHIEF Warrant Officer (W2) Jerome R. Daly, distinguished Army Aviator, was a demonstrated expert in aviation operations, maintenance, and the development of innovative tactics and doctrine and proven hardware systems.

In 1966 at the US Army Aviation Center he was the leading instructor of helicopter gunnery and an expert with M-3 and M-5 weapons systems. There he was not only noted for his fine skills but also for modernization and improvement of aerial gunnery training. In 1967 while serving as combat aviator and maintenance officer with the 121st Helicopter Company in Vietnam, CW2 Daly heroically rescued three downed helicopter crews who were threatened by two Viet Cong battalions. To conceal the area in smoke he completed 12 separate smoke runs through a hail of enemy fire allowing a rescue ship to recover the downed aircrew members although his aircraft was damaged beyond repair. For this action CW2 Daly was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

He continued to make many more significant contributions while assigned to key aviation positions, including commander of the 4th Battalion, 1st Aviation Brigade. In August, 1982, he retired in the grade of lieutenant colonel.

FREDERICK E. FERGUSON
CWO — CHANDLER, AZ

MAJOR Frederick E. Ferguson entered the Army from Arizona as an enlisted man and received his Warrant Officer commission upon graduation from flight school in May, 1967. He was immediately assigned to Vietnam and served there until May, 1968 in Company C, 227th Aviation Battalion, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile).

During the action of Tet in 1968, Major (then CWO) Ferguson distinguished himself through the rescue of a downed helicopter crew from a confined area within the city of Hue, Vietnam, while under intense enemy fire. For this action on 31 January 1968, he was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, becoming the first Army Aviator to be so honored in Vietnam and the first in modern Army Aviation history. The Congressional Medal of Honor was presented to Mr. Ferguson by President Richard M.

Nixon on the South Lawn of the White House on Armed Forces Day in 1969.

Major Ferguson continues to serve Army Aviation as a member of the Arizona National Guard's 997th Aviation Battalion (CAC). His actions "Above and beyond the call of duty" justly entitle him to a place in the Army Aviation Hall of Fame.

E. PEARCE FLEMING, JR.
COLONEL, RET. — Columbia, SC

COLONEL E. Pearce Fleming, Jr., provided enlightened leadership and foresight in key aviation duties during the decades of the '50's and '60's. Serving consecutively as Aviation Officer, Communications Zone, U.S. Army, Europe, and as an Aviation Staff Officer on the Army General Staff and Army Secretariat, he played vital roles during a critical developmental period for Army Aviation.

The early '60's found Colonel Fleming assigned to the Headquarters of the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, where he was particularly influential in insuring the freedom of action enjoyed by all Army Aviation units in Vietnam. He was the only Army Aviator assigned to that Headquarters and it was a particularly lonely place to be at that particular time in history.

When Colonel Fleming assumed command of the U.S. Army Primary Helicopter School at Fort Wolters, TX, the graduates were programmed at 100 each month. On his departure, the program's graduates totaled 575 each month and 1,150 helicopters were assigned to accomplish this mammoth training requirement. In terms of graduates and aircraft, Fort Wolters became the largest flight training school on one installation in the history of aviation.

An innovative trainer, manager, leader, and commander, Colonel Fleming's remarkable achievements at Fort Wolters contributed immeasurably to the success of Army Aviation pilot training during the tumultuous years of the Vietnam War. His final assignment was as Deputy Director of Army Aviation from which he retired after 31 years of exemplary service.

—MG George W. Putnam, Jr.

1983-1986 INDUCTEE
MARION J. FORTNER
MAJOR — DECEASED

IN 1941, SECOND Lieutenant Marion J. Fortner volunteered to participate in the field tests of the light aircraft for use with the field artillery as an Air Observation Post. The findings of that group led to the approval of organic air sections in all artillery battalions.

"Jake" Fortner was trained in the Piper Cub in the famous "Class before Class One". He later assisted in establishing the initial maintenance programs for pilots and mechanics and left active duty as a Major in 1945.

In 1955, he returned to Army Aviation as a civilian aeronautical engineer and advisor to the Army Aviation Test Board at Ft. Rucker, AL, where he served with distinction until his accidental death in 1970. "Jake" played an extremely prominent role at the Test Board, serving as a reservoir of knowledge and experience through the whole spectrum of aircraft and accessories acquired or tested by the Army.

Throughout his aviation career, he was highly regarded and respected for his administrative and technical effectiveness but he will also be remembered for the warm personality and inherent charm which he consistently brought to the workplace.

His contribution to mutual understanding and cooperation between the Board and the decision makers in industry and the Army Staff were unique and, today, he is fondly remembered throughout the entire aviation community.

—Joseph P. Cribbins

MRS. MARION J. FORTNER IS SHOWN AT THE LECTERN AT THE APRIL 8 AAAA LUNCHEON AT WHICH HER HUSBAND WAS INDUCTED INTO THE HALL OF FAME.

1983-1986 INDUCTEE
JAMES F. HAMLET
MAJOR GENERAL, RET. — TRENTON, NJ

MAJOR General James F. Hamlet distinguished himself by outstanding service as an aviator, aviation staff officer, and aviation commander during an Army career spanning more than 38 years. His 29 years as an Army Aviator included aviation staff duty in key positions in logistics, operations, force development, and combat development.

In these assignments, he was particularly influential during the formative years of the Army's aviation doctrine and organization. During the Vietnam War, General Hamlet served three years in combat flying assignments. The range of his combat aviation command experience is unique - an aviation battalion; an aviation group; assistant division commander in each of the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) and the 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile); and finally, command of the reinforced 3d Brigade of the 1st Cavalry Division which remained in Vietnam after the Division returned to the U.S.

Well known and highly respected among Army Aviators, General Hamlet has been a model of selfless service and dedication to the Army and to Army Aviation.

ROBERT F. LITLE, JR.

COLONEL, RET. — COPPERAS COVE, TX

COLONEL Robert F. Litle's remarkable contributions to Army Aviation in peace and war over a span of more than 24 years clearly distinguish him as a true pioneer in the advancement of air-ground tactics, techniques and technology.

In the early 1950's his conduct of experimental helicopter flights under adverse weather conditions was a major factor in proving the feasibility of instrumented helicopter operations and in determining the basic instrument configuration for Army helicopters.

During 1963-1966, while in a key command role with the 11th Air Assault Division, he organized, trained, and tested the only attack airplane battalion in the history of Army Aviation. Later, he served with distinction in airmobile combat in Vietnam as Executive Officer of an aviation group and as commander of an airmobile infantry battalion.

From 1971 to 1973, as a principal Director of Project MASSTER at Fort

Hood, he planned and evaluated with marked success many crucial field tests of major Army units employing aircraft in mid-intensity combat including the TRICAP Division, Air Cavalry Combat Brigade, and the Air Defense Suppression System.

Colonel Litle's extraordinary vision and versatility are indeed in the highest tradition of Army Aviation.

A.T. PUMPHREY
COLONEL, RET. — SAN ANTONIO, TX

COLONEL A.T. Pumphrey, while serving continuously in Army Aviation for 30 years in the grades of Flying Sergeant (World War II) to Colonel, was in the forefront of major advances in air-ground warfare in all three major theaters of operation known by our generation.

During the early 1940's he pioneered the combat employment of the L-5 as a vital observation post for armored forces in Germany. Later, he perfected the first aerial patrol along the German-Czechoslovakian border and achieved notable success in detecting Communist troop movements.

In 1950 in Korea he volunteered for and flew numerous L-17 forward air controller, combat missions and these greatly facilitated USAF strikes against the enemy. Also, Colonel Pumphrey helped provide aerial surveillance for U.S. forces as they marched on the North Korean capital.

In 1966-1967 in Vietnam he again distinguished himself as a combat leader while successively commanding an Assault Helicopter Battalion and an Air Cavalry Squadron.

His other contributions to Army Aviation had significant impact on flight safety, instruction at the Aviation School, and field Training and inspections.

Clearly, Colonel Pumphrey's contributions are in the highest tradition of Army Aviation.

ROBERT M. SHOEMAKER

GENERAL, RET. — BELTON, TX

GENERAL Shoemaker's military career has been marked with conspicuous contributions to Army Aviation.

During 1960-1961 he commanded the first experimental Aerial Combat Reconnaissance Company. In 1962 he served on the Howze Board and later in 1962-63 he was sent to Vietnam to document Army Aviation accomplishments and potential.

In 1963-1965 he played a key role during tests of Howze Board concepts with the 11th Air Assault Division. When that division was redesignated the 1st Cavalry Division and deployed to Vietnam in 1965, he served with distinction in combat as commander of the 1/9 Cavalry and 1st of the 12th Infantry.

He returned to Vietnam for a third tour in 1969-1970 as Brigade Commander, Chief of Staff, and Assistant Division Commander of the 1st Cavalry Division.

At Fort Polk, as CG of the 1st Cavalry Division and later III Corps, he brought on line the Army's first Air Cavalry Attack Brigade. General Shoemaker's military career, culminating as Commanding General of Forces Command, involved many pioneer efforts in the development of tactics, equipment, and concepts that are now the cornerstones of Army Aviation.

1983-1986 INDUCTEE
JOHN J. STANKO
COLONEL, RET. — EDGEWOOD ARSENAL, MD

COLONEL John J. Stanko has been the one person most responsible for the Army National Guard Aviation Program. He has been a part of aviation since World War II when he was in the Army Air Corps. Then, as a member of the National Guard, he became an Army Aviator in his home state of Pennsylvania.

For over 10 years he headed the first aviation logistics element of the National Guard, and then directed the Aviation Division where he has been responsible for safety, operations, and support of more than 2,500 Army National Guard aircraft located in the 50 states and the separate territories of the U.S.

The National Guard Aviation Program is one worthy of emulation. Its safety record is the best in the Army. Its operational readiness meets most Department of the Army standards. Its air and ground crews are well trained, technically proficient; and highly enthusiastic. Colonel Stanko has been the motivating force and leader in each of these areas and the National Guard Aviation Program would not be where it is as a member of the total Army without his service as a military officer and now as a civil servant.

John Stanko has earned the highest respect and regard of everyone for whom and with whom he has served. He is a true professional and a most worthy member of the Army Aviation Hall of Fame.

RONALD J. TUSI
CWO — DECEASED

CHIEF Warrant Officer (W2) Ronald L. Tusi was one of Army Aviation's most outstanding attack helicopter pilots.

One specific action best illustrates his tactical skills. On 15 April 1972 at An Loc, Vietnam, a number of enemy tanks had penetrated the friendly position and were within a few meters of the Republic of Vietnam Army's Fifth Division Headquarters. As conditions deteriorated rapidly, U.S. advisors to the Division Headquarters urgently requested Cobra support.

CW2 Tusi responded immediately and despite extremely intense anti-aircraft fire, he singlehandedly attacked the threatening enemy force, killing four tanks, damaging a fifth, and forcing the others to withdraw. CW2 Tusi's record of ten tanks killed by helicopters have never been equaled, and he is considered to be Army Aviation's leading tank killer.

During five tours in the Republic of Vietnam, he earned the Distinguished Service Cross, four Silver Stars, eight Distinguished Flying Crosses, three Bronze Stars (one with "V" device), 67 Air Medals, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with Gold Star, and the American Legion Aviation Award for Valor in 1972.

CW2 Tusi's brilliant aviation career was cut short by his untimely death in a Cobra accident on the night of August 6, 1974. He was participating at the time in the dangerous Night Owl experiments which were used as a basis for today's night fighting techniques.

His outstanding combat record, which serves as an inspiration for the entire aviation community, merit his induction as a member of the Army Aviation Hall of Fame.

Now I have introduced to you the members of the Board of Trustees (of the Army Aviation Hall of Fame). I hope you will not dispute my opinion that the Board of Trustees consists of altogether honorable men, with the possible exception of the Chairman.

They are also, I hope you would agree, highly capable ones whose records and accomplishments have demonstrated a wholehearted dedication to the cause of Army Aviation.

Now this group—without absentees—met in Washington on the fourth of last February to select among some 68 nominees the 1983 Inductees into the Hall of Fame. Art and Dotty Kesten, as you might expect, did their usually outstanding job of providing each of us by mail some weeks before our meeting an enormous volume of personal data on each of the nominees, which allowed us to do extensive homework.

We were thus individually well prepared when we started work in Washington. In the course of a long day in Washington, we engaged in extensive conversation and debate and took perhaps 20 or 30 votes in the very painful process of picking the best . . . the best, that is, according to our judgment of a group of outstanding nominees, almost every one of which was a deserving candidate.

I can speak for the entire Board of Trustees when I say that we became universally convinced by examining the contributions of all of the nominees that Army Aviation owes its progress and distinction to a great many capable and dedicated persons. IIII

BACKGROUND

Initiated in 1974, the AAAA-sponsored Army Aviation Hall of Fame is located in Ft. Rucker's Army Aviation Museum where the portraits and citations of each of the 45 inductees are displayed in a separate "Hall" in the Museum. Induction ceremonies were held at Ft. Rucker, AL, in 1974, 1975, 1976, and 1977; the 1980 and 1983 inductions were held in Atlanta, GA. Triennial inductions to the Hall of Fame are now held in conjunction with the conduct of the AAAA National Convention.

Let's not have a dual combat arms track!

BG Parker's article was a welcome and comprehensive recap of the path that has led the Army to an announcement on the formation of an Aviation Branch.

Surely no issue has been as long debated or as long awaited by aviators, and one which I firmly believe will add considerably to the Army's ability to fight successfully on a future battlefield.

However, there was one small "bullet" that was recounted as part of the 1979-80 Aviation Task Force study with which I must take exception.

The article stated that one study finding was that a dual combat arms track was a "viable option for some aviators." I strongly disagree with this finding for a number of reasons and would hope it would not find its way into the policies of a new branch.

I think that presently dual-coded combat arms and future branch personnel policies should continue to prohibit this option. The reason that an Aviation Branch is defensible rests mainly upon the need to develop officers and organizations that can control the increasingly complex tasks of the airland battle.

With our forces organized to conduct the battle, positions of command or staff require professional expertise that will not allow for a casual entry and exit of officers into and out of the program.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

MAJ Steven M. Zitnick is a current student at the U.S. Army Command & General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Additionally, the development of appropriate and long needed doctrine requires meaningful field experience on the part of the drafters if the doctrine is to be well thought out and compatible with other Arms. Whether an officer is in command of an aviation battalion or playing a critical role as a member of the primary staff at group, division, or corps, we will not be able to afford the luxury of allowing valuable time for the education of these key officers.

Insufficient time

Notional career profiles of an Aviation Branch designated officer will not allow time for the development of expertise and experience in other combat arms prior to the field grade level.

Additionally, many officers must serve MEL 4 assignments in ROTC, or recruiting or Reserve Component positions. When combined with normal military education, the ability for an individual to maintain competency in two combat arms appears even less likely.

An argument could be made that the designation of a combat arms specialty, in addition to aviation, is no different than for the officers who select an alternate specialty of operations, logistics, or personnel. I think there is an essential difference because these specialties can be developed and then utilized within current aviation organizations up through the field grade level.

Performing the duties as the S-3 of a CBAA appears to be far more enhancing from the standpoint of aviation than serving as the S-3 of a cavalry regiment or the operations officer of an artillery group.

If one accepts the fact that the designation of two combat arms specialties is desirable or advantageous, where are, for example, the armor/artillery designated officers or infantry/air defense officers?

If we advance into this "coming of age" with the unstated but practiced perception that qualification for an Aviation Branch officer is somehow less challenging or demanding than the qualification his brothers face in the other combat arms, we will have continued to promote a long held bias for what appears relatively obscure reasons.

If the officers who would be so designated as dual-combat arms specialties are so selected because they are exceptional officers, how much more greatly would a fledgling Aviation Branch profit from their contributions as members of aviation commands and staffs than to have them spend time in other organizations?

There are some that hold that the reasons in favor of dual-combat arms qualification for some aviators can be cynically criticized for its impact on centralized command selections. For whatever the reasons, however, I propose that we try to do it right from the beginning.

Aligning the specialties of officers who will become part of the branch and strongly adhering to a policy that precludes dual-combat arms specialties in the future can do much to insure that our branch gets the right start. ■■■■

ESSS crew makes record XC flight in an Army UH-60

A UH-60 BLACK HAWK helicopter that landed at Fort Rucker's Cairns Army Airfield May 5 made history in two ways: It was the first military development test flight of the External Stores Support System (ESSS), and it was the longest flight for the ESSS System.

The trip was made non-stop from the Sikorsky Aircraft plant in Stratford, CT, to Ft. Rucker. It took seven hours and 48 minutes to cover the 880 miles. Without the fuel tanks carried on the ESSS, the aircraft would have had to refuel about every two hours and trip time would have been approximately 12 hours.

At Fort Rucker the ESSS-equipped BLACK HAWK will be tested by the Army Aviation Development Test Activity (USAAVNDTA). The particular facet to be examined in the two month, 150 flight hour program will be the extended range capability provided by the four external, jettisonable, aluminum fuel tanks carried on the ESSS. They include two 450-gallon and two 230-gallon tanks. The activity's evaluation of this external fuel system will include its reliability, availability, maintainability, human factor engineering, and safety.

Use of all the tanks will allow the BLACK HAWK up to 11 hours of non-stop flight. It is anticipated, however, that the majority of missions for UH-60s equipped with ESSS-carried fuel tanks will last about five hours using only the two smaller tanks. That will still allow the aircraft to transport a fully-equipped squad of 11 people or an internal load of 3,000 pounds.

USAAVNDTA's project officer for the ESSS evaluation is CPT Richard Hudgens, who was the pilot on the flight from Stratford. Hudgens believes acquisition of the ESSS is a big step for Army Aviation:

"These additional hours of flying time mean we can self-deploy to Europe or Alaska or wherever we need to go. Now we won't have to depend on the Air Force to move us over such a distance."

COL Ted Allen, standing, FORSCOM Aviation Officer, and AAAA Presentations Committee Chairman, chats with Lt. Gen. M.C. Ross, Deputy Commander, US Army Forces Command.

The Thursday, April 7, professional session at the 1983 AAAA National Convention is opened by COL John W. Marr, AAAA's National President, with a brief "Welcome to Atlanta!"

The keynote address at the opening April 8 professional session at the '83 AAAA National Convention in Atlanta, Ga., is given to a 450-500 members in attendance by Lt. General M.C. Ross.

The Project Manager, Training Devices (Simulators), Lt. Colonel Bobby R. Adams, was one of 16 military presenters at the 1983 Convention.

The posh 1,200-seat auditorium at the Georgia World Congress Center was the site for both Friday and Saturday professional programming.

One of six individual "Industry" updates is given at the Saturday, Apr. 8 prof'l session by Robert F. Daniel, the President of Sikorsky Aircraft.

Prof'l Program

The three-day AAAA professional program featured some 16 military speakers and six industry executives

Some 70 senior military attendees and an equal number of senior executives representing AAAA's Industry Member firms attended the AAAA's very first "First Light Breakfast".

Wide awake and well into his 20-min. "First Light Breakfast" pitch at 0730 hours is Lieutenant General James H. Merryman, Dep Chief of Staff for Research, Development & Acquisition.
